"International Security in an Era of Globalization"

The world is on the cusp of the most profound shift in global power and influence in a century. Managing this quiet revolution calls for nothing short of a new international system, with a radical revision of existing institutions and patterns of doing business. It is a time for thinking big, for fashioning a "global grand bargain" that integrates the rising powers into a cooperative global system, while preserving the fundamental values undergirding it.

Our speaker and our members suggest:
